

Distributed By:

THE BEST BACKYARDS BEGIN WITH WESTERN RED CEDAR

AND THE BEST CEDAR BEGINS AT TMI FOREST PRODUCTS, INC.

The smell of fresh cut Western Red Cedar permeates the Pacific Northwest. The coastal Indians built cedar long-houses, cooked salmon on cedar planks and carved canoes from cedar logs. For more than a century, cedar was the only choice for Northwest roofs, and it's still America's favorite wood for fencing. For beauty and rugged durability, you simply can't beat Western Red Cedar. And for absolute consistency board after board, you can't beat TMI Forest Products, Inc. TMI has raised the bar for all grades of cedar by inspecting each and every board. Other companies may copy us, and other products might emulate cedar, but nothing beats a fence made from the real thing. TMI Western Red Cedar.

ABSOLUTE CONSISTENCY BOARD AFTER BOARD

The Beauty's More Than Just Skin Deep.

There's something uniquely inviting about a Western Red Cedar fence. Whether you stain it to match the house, or let it weather to a cool patina, the classic look and feel of cedar cannot be matched by any manufactured product.

But the appeal of cedar doesn't stop there. Natural preservatives called tannins protect the wood against insects and decay, making it one of the most worry-free fences around. It's also easy to cut, and easy to handle, which makes installation much more manageable.

Nothing Goes To Waste.

Lumber from the forests of the Pacific Northwest is one of America's greatest renewable resources. Every year, 35 million trees are planted on private forest lands in Washington State alone. That's five new trees for every one harvested.

When the logs arrive at TMI Forest Products, Inc. they're inspected and evaluated for maximum yield and minimum waste. Virtually every speck of every log is utilized. The very best wood is cut for the varying grades of fencing products. The bark, the chips and even the sawdust are used for secondary products including beauty bark, fuel for power generation, and fiber for paper making.

Our plant produces no solid waste whatsoever. Our products are renewable and recyclable. Even this brochure is printed on recycled paper. At TMI the commitment is clear.

Clear Grade: Quite simply, the best cedar fencing you can buy. Clear Grade has no knots whatsoever. And as the top of the line TMI board, the width, thickness, and texture are perfectly uniform.

Estate Grade: Sound, intergrown knots add character to Estate Grade boards without sacrificing beauty or uniformity. Defect free, this board represents the quality of Western Red Cedar that has made TMI famous.

Our People Have An Eye For Quality. And A Nose For Cedar.

While other lumber companies inspect ever pallet of lumber, our inspectors look at ever inch of every board. And nothing gets by them. These guys can spot a defect a mile away. And their experience tells them at a glance which grade the board belongs in.

Whether it's Clear Grade or Residential, rest assured our lumber will have fewer culls and higher consistency than any other cedar on the market. So you won't have to fumble through a large stack just to find a few good boards.

Suburban Grade: Our best-selling fence boards represent the benchmark of what a cedar fence should look like. Pleasing texture, precise dimensions and subtle variations in color fit naturally with any landscape. It's the look you imagined, at a price you can afford.

Residential Grade: If you're looking for something less expensive and a little more rustic, Residential Grade is the perfect choice. Every board adheres to TMI's strict quality control requirements and maintains the natural durability of cedar.

